Chemistry: facilities fully utilized

EBIT broadly at prior-year level; strong demand and high utilization of facilities; steep rises in raw materials and transport costs; structural costs in line with higher product volumes.

Paper: back in profit

Higher paper prices owing to market developments (lower capacities); substantially higher costs of recovered paper, waste wood, auxiliary materials and energy; 2022 earnings raised by CHF 5.5 million reduction in depreciation (following fixed asset impairment at the end of 2021); 2021 earnings boosted by CHF 11.6 million from sales of carbon credits (issued from 2018 onwards).

Packaging: high order volumes

Strong demand for pharmaceutical packagings; customers increasing their stocks; rising costs of raw materials and transportation largely passed on to the market.

- ① Net sales growth excluding currency factors of CHF 127 million or 51% (Chemistry +16%, Paper +83%, Packaging +30%) thanks to high facility utilizations and higher sales prices
- ② CHF 5.9 million attributable to increasing stocks (2021: CHF 11.6 million from sales of carbon credits issued from 2018 onwards)
- ③ Gross margin up (3 percentage points) on prior year thanks to closure of margin gap at Paper and Packaging, despite further sizeable increases in raw materials, energy and transport costs
- ④ Proportionately low increase in personnel expense compared to net sales growth
- ⑤ Disproportionately high 12-percentage-point increase in EBIT margin thanks to closure of margin gap (depreciation CHF 5.5 million lower following fixed asset impairment at the end of 2021)

- ③ Non-current financial liabilities contractually repaid
- ④ Dividend distribution of CHF 1.20 per share for the 2021 financial year

The CPH Group Sound value with further growth potential

Net sales substantially increased by 51% excluding currency factors

Group EBITDA margin of 17.1%, boosted by higher sales prices

Chemistry EBITDA margin of a strong 17.6% thanks to high demand and full utilization of facilities

Paper EBITDA margin of an adequate 19.6% thanks to current easing of market pressures

Packaging EBITDA margin of a good 13.5% thanks to higher prices and sales volumes

Net result of CHF 47 million thanks to high capacity utilizations and higher sales prices

Free cash flow of CHF 35 million thanks to net sales and EBITDA growth and substantially disproportionately low increase in net working capital

Balance sheet equity ratio remains very sound at 55%

Net liquidity increased by CHF 27 million

The CPH Group Value drivers

Outlook for 2022 Substantially higher earnings expected

The CPH Group

- Higher net sales expected in all three divisions
- Business development will depend on the availability and prices of raw materials and energy, and on transport capacities
- Operating and net result both expected to be in the high double-digit millions

Chemistry

- Double-digit net sales growth expected
- Additional US capacities to come into operation
- Further rises in raw materials and transport costs
- Operating margin expected to fall somewhat short of its high prior-year level

Paper

- European demand for graphic papers will continue to decline
- Production volumes will diminish as a result of capacity reductions
- Net sales expected to be well above prior-year levels
- Higher recovered paper and energy prices will put pressure on operating margins in the second-half period

Packaging

- New Brazilian coating plant will come into operation
- Market introduction of mono-material PVC blisters
- Net sales growth may well slow in the second half-year
- Operating margin likely to be maintained at its first-half levels
